CONTENTS

An important victory

The League of St George was amongst the first of many to congratulate Nick Griffin and Mark Collett on their historic legal victory. Their fight for freedom was not just a personal victory, but a victory for freedom and a victory for the entire British nationalist community.

Idiotic behaviour or enemy action?

The Swastika is a sacred symbol to National Socialists worldwide. So when it is sprayed on a British war memorial in West Sussex it not only desecrates the memory of those who gave their lives for Britain, it also desecrates a sacred symbol. But who would do such a thing? The village idiot, or have anti-Fascists been at work again? This would not be the first time that the enemy has resorted to such daubings in the hope that local people and the media will blame British nationalists.

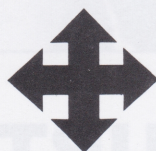

Join the fight

We welcome the campaign by the British National Party against the BBC and its biased reporting of news. For deliberately ignoring attacks on Whites by other ethnic groups, the BBC should lose its charter.

Welcome back

The release of the eminent author and historian David Irving is at last a victory for free speech and common sense. I would like to thank all those who joined us in campaigning for Mr Irving's freedom, with special thanks to the Nationalist Alliance and the November 9th Society who did excellent work with their lobbying of the Austrian Embassy.

Labour Government Threaten More Repression after BNP Legal Victory

"We live in a democratic society which jealously protects the rights of its citizens to freedom of expression and freedom of speech".

It was with these words that Judge Norman Jones sent jurors from Leeds Crown Court away to consider verdicts against BNP Chairman, Nick Griffin and party activist Mark Collett., both of whom had been charged with offences under Britain's draconian race laws.

The rest, is as they say, merely a detail of history.

After Mr Griffin, a graduate in law, had spent much of the case running rings around the Crown prosecutor, even at one stage appearing to put the whole Islamic religion on trial, the jury returned "not guilty" verdicts on all charges.

Almost immediately, left-wing academics accused the government of giving the BNP the "oxygen of publicity" in a case that it couldn't possibly win. To many others, it was simply a political show-trial and publicity stunt which Labour's now notorious spin-doctors got badly wrong.

"We live in a democratic society which jealously protects the rights of its citizens to freedom of expression and freedom of speech".

Just who persuaded the legal authorities to hold a re-trial on charges similar to those that the "Leeds Two" had already been acquitted on earlier this year, we will never know. With a Prime Minister who is a trained barrister, married to a part-time Judge and Queens Counsel, there was certainly no lack of legal experience to seek advice.

It has been suggested by Labour "insiders" that the pressure for a re-trial came from a prominent person or persons with no legal training, and this would appear to be the case.

Another disturbing feature is that within hours of the not guilty verdicts being announced, the "Prime Minister in waiting" Gordon Brown, a former journalist with no legal experience, took to the television studios to announce that when he took over the top job he would look at changing the law to make such convictions easier.

His statement appeared to be endorsed by Peter Hain, the African-born MP for Neath whose sole legal experience seems to be that he was once placed under surveillance by MI5!

The Labour government only recently introduced legislation against incitement to religious hatred, so it is difficult to imagine just what further repressive laws Labour intends to introduce. Brown said in his televised statement that he felt "most people would find some of Mr Griffin's words offensive". Does this suggest that Labour are now planning to criminalise those who give offence? Is this another way of mollifying those Muslims who try to prevent debate about Islamic terrorism on the grounds of "Islamophobia", or is the government really frightened of the growing support for the BNP and other nationalist groups?

It is certain that if Mr Griffin had been found guilty then he would have faced a substantial prison sentence. This would have given government agencies the ideal opportunity to foment discontentment within BNP ranks as senior officials scramble for the leader's position. While the BNP could have tried to whip up public support for "free speech", the BNP could have changed beyond all recognition by the time Mr Griffin was released.

The Home Secretary, John Reid will be Gordon Brown's main rival for the top job when Blair finally abdicates, and Reid is being more cautious about any proposed changes to the law. He has stated that he believes "racial hatred can be defeated only by rational argument and political opposition". Political observers are forecasting that Brown will win the leadership election to succeed Blair, and with a deputy Prime Minister of either Peter Hain, a founding member of the Anti-Nazi League, or Jon Cruddas, the MP for Dagenham who seems to be very close to the sinister Searchlight organisation, nationalists are certain to face more repression in the future.

Eminent Historian is Released from Prison on Probation

Free at last ... David Irving

The eminent Historian and author, David Irving has at last been freed from his Austrian prison following a successful appeal. Mr Irving was arrested at an Austrian motorway rest area in November 2005 and charged with offences of holocaust denial. At his trial in February last year Mr Irving was sentenced to 3-years' imprisonment.

Campaigns to have him released were well supported in many parts of the world, by those that saw this attack on Irving was an attack of freedom of speech. In Britain, demonstrations took place outside the Austrian Embassy in London by Irving supporters from all spectrums of British society. A letter writing campaign was also organised by both the League of St George and the Nationalist Alliance.

It would appear that Mr Irving's decision to change his legal representation would turn out to be vital. At his original trial Mr Irving claims that after being sentenced to 3-years in prison his lawyer, Dr Elmar Kresbach told the media "I think the three year sentence for Mr Irving is too long, I think that two years would have been the proper sentence". Not the sort of statement that would inspire confidence in the accused!

So for the appeal, Mr Irving engaged Dr Herbert Schaller, who had defended him in the 1980s and 1990s in Germany.

His new lawyer entered an aggressive defence that not only challenged the length of the sentence, but questioned whether Mr Irving was guilty at all. The Judge decided to convert the remainder of Mr Irving's sentence to probation, and ruled that he must be deported from the country. Some Jewish groups condemned the decision, some even going so far as to allege that the Judge "had right-wing tendencies and was known to have close ties with Austrian nationalist leader, Jorg Haider".

On his return to Britain, Mr Irving immediately organised a press conference at which he called for an international boycott of all historians in Germany and Austria until they put pressure on their governments to change their anti-free speech laws.

Footnote: The German government initiates in the region of 10,000 Court cases a year against those it considers have breached its draconian "Holocaust denial" laws.

Media Harass BNP Members

Prominent members of the British National Party are being targeted by the national media in a manner normally only used by the gutter press such as Searchlight magazine. The latest victim is one of Britain's leading ballet dancers, Simone Clarke. Several national newspapers gave massive coverage to the news that Miss Clarke (pictured right) had been a member of the BNP for over a year. To her immense credit, Miss Clarke didn't issue a hasty denial and run for cover, instead, she was most vocal in justifying her concerns over unrestricted immigration into Britain and her support for the BNP.

Another prominent figure targeted for "exposure" was Mrs Annabel Geddes, the former director of the London Tourist Board, who is also linked to the immensely popular "London Dungeon" tourist attraction. Again, to the disappointment of the media, Mrs Geddes told a reporter that she was proud to be a member of the BNP, adding, "We've got to keep little UK basically Anglo-Saxon". One national newspaper did summarise their article by stating "the BNP are recruiting 100 a week".

More Schools Found Serving Halal Meat to Christian Pupils

Following our revelation in issue 70 that schools in Worcestershire were serving halal meat in school meals without pupils knowledge, we now have information that Reading Borough Council in Berkshire also serves halal meat in school dinners, and has been doing so for several years. Parents of non-Muslim children are furious that they were not consulted especially those who are opposed to animal cruelty. The local branch of the Christian Peoples Alliance are considering legal action against Reading Council officers on the grounds that Christian children are not being given the equal right to have non-halal meat.

Asian Men Charged Over Sexual "Grooming"

Following our article in issue 69 of League Sentinel in which we revealed that police were investigating allegations that gangs of Asian men in various towns in Lancashire were believed to be grooming young White schoolgirls for underage sex, we are delighted to announce that 20 men have been arrested and five have been charged.

Sarwar Ali, aged 31, Kadir Hussain, 23, and Shakil Chowdhury, 39, were arrested by Oldham police and have been charged with rape. Shahzad Masood, 32, and Suleman Mohammed, also 32, have been charged with abduction.

Hussain and Chowdhury were remanded in custody and the others were released on bail.

Investigations into the other men are continuing and many of them are likely to face criminal charges.

Oldham Social Services and police are also investigating separately claims that some of the girls were being forced into prostitution after being deliberately hooked on drugs and raped.

Diwali Lights Upset Christian Groups in Leamington Spa

A decision by Warwick District Council to allow Diwali lights and banners erected in Leamington High Street to remain in place over the Christmas festival has upset local Christians. The Lights celebrate the Hindu and Sikh religious festival of Diwali which begins in October and normally lasts for just five days.

Local Christian groups claimed that by allowing the Diwali lights to stay in place over Christmas the Councillors were denigrating one of the most important Christian festivals of the year. Concerns were also raised about the growing practice of forcing Christian children to take part in Diwali events held in local schools. A representative from a concerned parents group reminded the Councillors that, "this is still a predominately Christian country and minority religions should not be allowed to overshadow Christian festivals".

But both local Labour Councillors and prominent Asians in the town defended their actions claiming, "This is a multi-racial town and we need to partake in each other's celebrations".

In a poll held by the Leamington Courier newspaper, 81% of readers called on the council to remove the Diwali lights immediately.

Footnote: The Diwali festival originated in India and means the "festival of lights". In Northern India the festival lasts for just five days and "Diwali day" is celebrated on the third day of the festival.

BNP Lead Campaign Against BBC "Racism"

The British National Party have launched a campaign against what they describe as "BBC Racism". The campaign follows the reporting of an attack on a 15 year-old White schoolboy in Wroughton, Wiltshire by an eight strong gang of Asians. In two reports, the BBC failed, or refused to disclose the facts that the victim was White and his attackers Asian. Wiltshire police issued a statement in which they confirmed that an eight youths aged between 14 and 20 had been arrested following an attack on a 15 year-old boy who suffered severe head injuries. The police also revealed that they "are playing close attention to any community impact due to the different ethnicities involved"!

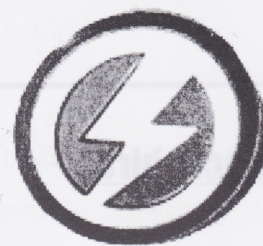

The BBC apparently also ignored a protest meeting held by parents of pupils of Ridgeway School, the scene of the attack, who demanded protection for their children following a spate of "racist bullying by a gang calling itself, Asian Invasion". The BBC Charter clearly states that "the BBC must remain politically impartial and report without discrimination the truth".

Women in the Front Line

Louise Irvine

The Last of the Holloway Girls

Women are playing an increasingly important role in British nationalism, and this is not by any means a new phenomenon. In the 1930s, Mosley's BUF boasted its own women's organisation, and just last year we learnt of the death of one of its most formidable members, Louise Irvine, the women's organiser for Birmingham.

Louise arrived in Birmingham in 1935 aged 20 to take up her first teaching post after leaving training college.

On arrival, she was horrified at the poor economic conditions and the vast slum housing. The naïve young teacher first looked towards the Labour Party to improve conditions for "the workers" but then as now, the so-called Socialists were more interested in International affairs than in Britain's internal problems.

Just a few months later, Louise spotted the BUF's local branch HQ, a bookshop in Stafford Street. After a short chat with a local official Louise realised that to solve Britain's problems "Action" was needed, not talk, and Mosley and the BUF were the party to provide "Action".

At the time she joined the movement was undergoing reconstruction with many of the National positions being reduced in favour of unpaid local volunteers, and Louise often found herself manning the bookshop and discussing policy with passing members of the public. Louise described her branch as probably typical of many large city branches with a mixture of members, rich and poor, skilled and unskilled. Among her Birmingham colleagues were railway workers, solicitors, a brewery owner and skilled and unskilled factory workers. In her own words "the wearing of the simple Black shirt eliminated all feelings of class distinction".

When the women's organiser announced that she would be giving up active membership because of ill health, Louise took over the post.

The BUF's policy of sex equality meant that women were not treated as a separate section, being encouraged to take part in every activity. Louise did introduce weekly women's meetings to discuss women's problems and how best they could help in propagating the cause. Not confined to jumble sales and bazaars like Tory women, the BUF developed women propagandists and several excellent speakers. Through her efforts, and those of the Branch organiser, whom she was later to marry, Birmingham BUF grew rapidly.

How their world crashed when in 1939 the British government declared war on nationalist Germany. She said later "it seemed unthinkable that just twenty-years after the First World War ended Europe should face being torn apart again".

In June 1940, Louise's fiancé, Birmingham District Inspector, "Inky" Irvine was imprisoned under the infamous "Defence Regulation 18B" and in November 1940 Louise herself was arrested.

Detained in Holloway Prison, Louise formed a firm friendship with fellow detainee Lady Mosley, (pictured right) a friendship that was to endure for over sixty years.

After a spell in Holloway, Louise was transferred to the bleak Port Erin Women's Internment Camp on the Isle of Man. Louise served at total of 18 months in custody without ever being charged with any offence. After her release she returned to teaching.

After the war, Louise and her husband visited pre-wartime friends in Germany. Despite the massive Allied bombings, they were welcomed by Germans who showed no resentment towards a fellow European.

When Mosley launched Union Movement and its policy of Europe a Nation, Louise and "Inky" were founder members. They moved home to East Anglia, went into business and established a thriving branch of UM in the seaside town of Clacton, and units in several surrounding towns.

In her later years, Louise became active in the Friends of Oswald Mosley organisation, preaching the European Ideal until the end.

MORE LABOUR LIES OVER IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM SEEKERS

In the run up to the last local elections in May, the Labour government, fearful of the growing support for the BNP and other nationalist parties, promised the electorate to get tough on would be immigrants and tough on failed asylum seekers. Now just months after the elections official figures reveal the scale of Labour's lies to the electorate.

Blair: Lied to the electorate about immigration

Blair publicly promised swift action to clear the backlog of an estimated 400,000 failed asylum seekers, with monthly targets for deportations. Now League Sentinel can reveal that between July and September just 3,600 asylum seekers were removed while in the same period there were 4,500 bogus claims ... the problem has increased!

Bogus refugees awaiting deportation now clog our prison system and immigration officers have been instructed to allow illegal immigrants to enter the country unchallenged because there is no room at detention centres. Britain has lost control of its borders!

Not only has this group increased, but the number of new immigrants from Eastern Europe is estimated to be in the region of 700,000, sixteen times the number that Labour said would be coming to Britain from the expanded European Union.

Most racial-nationalists in Britain welcomed the proposal to allow limited immigration into Britain from predominantly white Eastern Europe, as a way of redressing the balance of the falling white birth-rate in Britain against the rising birth-rate of non-whites. Official figures show that in just one year 5000 babies were born to Polish couples living in Britain, but the impact of mass immigration is now endangering British identity and culture. It is a fact that in many small English towns the numbers of East Europeans are beginning to outnumber the indigenous population.

Too many, too quickly!

Eastern Europeans are a welcome addition to our racial stock but are the numbers out of control?

In addition, given the government's generosity in providing every one of these immigrants with tax credits, child benefits and council housing, is it any surprise that 55,000 have already joined the benefit system costing the taxpayer an extra £600,000. In addition to this generosity, after being here for 12 months the immigrants will be entitled to unemployment benefit at a level equal to one month's wages in their home countries. We are being bled dry!

Not only is there no sign of immigration declining, a new wave of immigrants from Romania and Bulgaria is already underway. The government claims it has imposed a limit of 20,000 unskilled workers from these countries but, in reality all those who claim to be "self-employed" will be allowed entry in unrestricted numbers. Amongst these are expected to be thousands of Roma gipsies, (pictured above) who plan to come here, not to work, but attracted by our benefits system.

This policy of mass immigration is the government's weak spot, and British nationalists must emphasize this. Emphasize also our pledge not to compromise. We want our country back; and we will take our country back!

INTEGRATION, INTEGRATION, INTEGRATION.

The REAL reason behind Labour and the Muslim veil

When Labour leadership candidate Jack Straw started the ongoing row over Muslim women wearing the niqab, or full-face veil it appeared that he was expressing the view held by many native Britons that Muslims were being given special privileges. But that was not his intention! The Labour government have their own secret agenda to remove all and every visible sign of racial or religious identity from the inhabitants of Britain so as better to achieve their real goal, a totally integrated, multi-racial Britain!

Labour's favourite race adviser, Trevor Phillips almost gave the game away when he announced that New Labour's sacred mantra of multi-culturalism was in danger of creating self built ghettos and actually encouraged segregation. He continued, "it is time to assert a core of Britishness and encourage immigrants to integrate more effectively".

The integration theme was then taken up by the government's Communities Minister, Ruth Kelly, a lady often used as a "stalking horse" to test public reaction to planned policy changes. Ms Kelly, in an address to the government-funded, Commission on Integration and Cohesion praised, "The contribution that immigrants have made to public services and the economy" and recognised the "proud tradition of integration" but then called for improved action to better integrate communities."

So, multi-culturalism is out! Integration is in!

Hiding behind a veil of secrecy ...

The niqab (pictured right) and the berka are highly visible symbols of Muslim identity and so must go. The campaign against the veil was supported by several Labour political heavy weights. Initiated by the Leader of the House, Jack Straw, the campaign even drew the attention of the Prime Minister who was quoted as condemning the veil as "a mark of separation". In effect, the veil issue has been used as a smokescreen by Labour to deflect the population away from their integration agenda. Threats to ban the veil in schools were given mass publicity by the media, readily encouraged by Labour spin-doctors. France was quoted as a positive example after it banned the wearing of all religious symbols and clothing in schools, just months after Labour's "Race Relations Lobby" had condemned the move as being racist! Similarly the proposals by the Dutch government to ban the wearing of burkas in public was praised by Prime Minister Tony Blair as "plain common sense".

Faith schools under attack ...

The next tactic has been to threaten the single religion or faith schools that are growing in Britain. All of Britain's major religions operate faith schools. The Church of England, Britain's Catholic Church, Jews, Sikhs and Muslims have all seen the value of preserving their religious identity. Many have strict conditions for entry and Labour see these as a major obstacle to the holy grail of integration.

"Ethnic minorities must integrate into British society or stay out of Britain". Prime Minister Tony Blair. December 2006.

Labour Education Minister, Alan Johnson was given the task of creating another smokescreen. His opening salvo was to insist that all new faith schools accepted a quota of twenty-five percent of its pupils from other religions. Johnson's "storm troopers" would be the school inspectors from the education regulatory body OFSTED who would have the power to force schools to accept pupils from other religions as well as forcing them to employ teachers from other religious backgrounds. All in the cause of Integration!

The cowardly Church of England immediately capitulated and even offered to impose the quota on existing Church schools!

Muslim school authorities have refused to be drawn on the subject, safe in the knowledge that very few, if any, Christian or Jewish parents would want to send their offspring to a Muslim school, and British Jews seem confident that they will also not be affected by the proposals and continue the campaign against what they term "assimilation". Advertisements in the Jewish press continue to warn Jewish parents that "assimilation begins in the playground" and that they should send their children to "Jewish schools for a Jewish future".

But government plans to force faith schools to "twin" with faith schools of other religions are well advanced, and no groups are likely to be excluded!

So committed to the new gospel of Integration, some senior Labour figures even seem willing to risk the wrath of Muslim voters by proposing the banning of forced marriages and publicly emphasising to Muslim Community leaders and preachers that all Muslims must adhere to British, not Islamic laws in the UK.

There are also plans to hit the finances of faith groups, which currently receive grants of £13 million a year of taxpayer's money. A leaked document has revealed that in future, before grants are approved, faith, religious and racial groups, will have to prove they are promoting integration!

Of course, religious identity is not the government's real target, racial identity is!

Racial Identity is threatened by Integration

Just a few months ago a team of eminent scientists projected that in about a thousand years or so, the entire human population of the world would be coffee coloured.

New Labour it seems cannot wait for evolution. Like a gaggle of mad scientists they are determined to destroy our racial pride and racial identity and turn Britain into a fully integrated, mixed race, socialist nightmare.

You have been warned!

RACE

"The First Reality of European Union"

Sir Oswald Mosley. May 1948

Race is the first reality of European Union. The rest is mostly words, like the old League of Nations. This unique stock of men in Europe has in fact produced the culture, the values and the achievement of the West. This race, in their family of Europe, have produced most things that matter on this globe. This achievement has been the result of their character which in turn was the result of their race. Horses go further and faster than donkeys, because they are horses and not donkeys. We cannot avoid the basic facts of nature even if we could. Nor can we drown them beneath verbiage of words. If we are to build surely we must build on real foundations, and know what we do.

Therefore I affirm the fact that the first reality and rock foundation of European Union is race.

Who are our nearest kindred? The answer is the German people. The British and the Germans are the most closely related of all European peoples. The Northern French also belong to this close circle of race or family, and were united with the Germans under Charlemagne. Near in blood to us and the Germans are the whole Northern block of Sweden, Norway and Denmark. A related stock is also the great family of the Latin nations, whose culture has adorned the illuminated pages of European history. European Union requires all these peoples. All that matters in the past they have in common; the future can belong to all of them.

This is the principle which I ask the kindred people of Britain to affirm and, in so doing, to build the Europe of the future on foundations which will endure. Union Movement declares the right of each great people of Europe to unite, and then, as a united people, to enter the wider Union of Europe.

Historians Targeted Following Holocaust Review Conference in Iran

Several well respected historians face repression by their own governments following their attendance of a Holocaust Review Conference in Iran. The first victim of the Holocaust Repressionists is likely to be Robert Faurisson, the French-based former University lecturer. In Tehran, Professor Faurisson cast doubts on the efficiency of the type of gas chamber that is claimed was used to murder six million Jews. As a result of this speech the French Foreign Minister announced that Professor Faurisson would almost certainly face charges of "Holocaust denial" on his return to France.

Another Conference attendee, Dr Frederick Toben, of the Adelaide Institute of Australia is facing possible legal action initiated by the Executive Council of Australian Jewry, who have taken exception to his alleged statement at the Iranian Holocaust Conference that "Hitler's extermination of six million Jews and the existence of gas chambers had not been proven". In 1999, Dr Toben was imprisoned in Germany for "Holocaust denial". One historian who will escape prosecution is Gunter Deckert, from Germany. Intending to attend the conference as an observer, Mr Deckert's passport was seized by the German police to prevent him leaving the country. German officials gave the reason for the seizure as "Mr Deckert's attendance at the conference would harm the image of the German state". Instead, Mr Deckert attended the trial in Mannheim of Germar Rudolf, a historian-scientist who is currently facing trial for the heinous crime (in Germany) of "Holocaust denial".

In Tehran, the conference, which had official status, was addressed by the Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmajinadad. The President called for an independent investigation of all aspects of the Holocaust claims, a proposal that was warmly welcomed by the delegates. Included in the delegates from all parts of the world were six Orthodox Jews from the Neutrei Karta sect, who claim that "Zionists have lied about the numbers of Jews who died in the war, and use the Holocaust as a device to justify their oppression".

Following the conference, a new independent study group was established. The group, the International Holocaust Research Committee, has a threefold agenda.

- 1: To constitute an objective, impartial truth seeking body to investigate the alleged Holocaust.
- 2: To establish an international justice commission for determining penalties to be imposed on those found guilty of perpetrating the "Holocaust" accusation, should it prove to be false. To determine those reparations to be paid to any unjustly accused, as well as to determine the form of punishment for those found guilty of false accusation.

- 3: To organise another International Holocaust Review Conference.

Swiss Nationalists to Abolish Racism Laws

The Patriotic, Democratic Union of the Centre (UDC) which won a majority in the recent Swiss elections has proposed the abolition of all racism laws. The UDC leader, Ueli Maurer, stated that such laws impinge on the right of free speech. If the proposals are accepted then laws denying the Holocaust would be withdrawn from the Swiss legal code.

Mr Maurer defended his controversial proposals by saying, "everyone should have the right to express what they thought, even if it was incorrect".

WILL ISRAEL FACE WAR CRIMES CHARGES?

A group of human rights lawyers are demanding that the Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert and several military figures be tried for war crimes following Israel's invasion of Lebanon.

According to the human rights group, Amnesty International, Israeli forces attacking Lebanon deliberately targeted civilian infrastructure, and the deliberate destruction of homes, bridges, roads, water and fuel plants were an integral part of Israel's strategy. Under the Geneva Convention, deliberate attacks on civilian targets, or "targets crucial to civilian survival", constitutes a war crime!

Kate Gilmore, of Amnesty stated "that the pattern, scope and scale of the attacks went beyond Israel's claim that this was collateral damage". Their defence is simply not credible".

During the attack and occupation of Lebanon, Israel launched 7000 air strikes, destroying 30,000 civilian homes and two hospitals, a further three hospitals were severely damaged. One third of all civilian fatalities were children, an extraordinarily high proportion unless they were being deliberately targeted.

Another war crime committed by the Israelis was the dropping of cluster bombs in civilian occupied areas. Under the International "rules of engagement" This horrific weapon is allowed to be deployed against an enemy only on the battlefield.

An allegation of "disproportionate action" by Israel against the Lebanese people is supported by International observers from France and Russia, by EU officials and the UN official, Jan Egeland.

This allegation is classically demonstrated by the attack on the village of Qana in South Lebanon.

The village is the site, many Christians believe, where Christ performed the first of his "miracles" by turning water into wine while attending a wedding. The incident was recorded in the gospels of St John.

On the 30th of July the Israeli air force launched a sustained attack on civilian homes in Qana killing 56 civilians, 32 of which were child en.

When Jesus visited Qana he is reputed to have turned water into wine. When the Israeli air force visited the town they turned women and children into corpses

Whether a UN inquiry into allegations of war crimes will be held is doubtful, with the United States sure to oppose and ultimately veto any investigation into Israeli activity in Lebanon. The US is terrified of opening the war crimes "can of worms" especially as the US has itself been accused by a British Coroner of unlawfully killing the British reporter Terry Lloyd. Mr Lloyd, who was reporting on the war in Iraq on behalf of ITN when he was wounded in cross-fire between US troops and members of the Iraqi resistance. As he was being rescued in a civilian minibus he was deliberately shot in the head by a US soldier. Mr Lloyd (pictured right) was unarmed and injured, and therefore posed no threat to the US forces, this action constitutes a serious war crime.

President Bush will not allow the Israeli Prime Minister to stand trial in the Hague for war crimes in case, he finds himself occupying the same dock.
